OF COMMUNITY SERVICES

MENTAL AND BEHAVIORAL HEALTH RESOURCES DURING COVID-19

Anxiety and stress are on the rise as more and more families suffer from job loss, isolation, and the fear of contracting the virus and how to care for their families. The Disaster Distress Helpline has seen 900% increase in calls compared to last year which demonstrates both that anxiety is high but also that people are seeking help.

People already struggling emotionally, financially, and those with substance abuse or existing mental health issues are especially vulnerable now. Help is available and open to all who need it. Below is a list of Mental Health and Behavioral Health resources assembled by the Division of Community Services.

HOTLINES and EMERGENCY MENTAL HEALTH

If you, or someone you care about, are feeling overwhelmed with emotions like sadness, depression, or anxiety, or feel like you want to harm yourself or others. If you are having a crisis and need help now:

FOR PARENTS OF CHILDREN

Watch for behavior changes in your child. Not all children and teens respond to stress in the same way. Ways to support your child:

Answer questions and share facts about COVID-19 in a way that your child or teen can understand.

Reassure your child or teen that they are safe. Let them know it is ok if they feel upset. Share with them how you deal with your own stress so that they can learn how to cope from you. Limit your family's exposure to news coverage of the event, including social media. Children may misinterpret what they hear and can be frightened about something they do not understand.
