Mental and Behavioral Health Resources during COVID-19

Anxiety and stress are on the rise as families suffer from job loss, isolation, and the fear of contracting the virus or how to care for their families. People already struggling emotionally, financially, and those with substance abuse or existing mental health issues are especially vulnerable. Help is available to those who need it. Below is a list of Mental Health and Behavioral Health resources assembled by the Division of Community Services.

FOR PARENTS OF CHILDREN

Watch for behavior changes in your child. Not all children and teens respond to stress in the same way. Ways to support your child:

Talk with your child or teen about the COVID-19 outbreak.

Answer questions and share facts about COVID-19 in a way that your child or teen can understand. Reassure your child or teen that they are safe. Let them know it is ok if they feel upset. Share with them how you deal with your own stress so that they can learn how to cope from you. Limit your family's exposure to news coverage of the event, including social media. Children may misinterpret what they hear and can be frightened about something they do not understand.
